

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE

IN preparing this revision of the "New Era Word Book," the author has aimed to meet the requirements of teachers who insist that a speller should teach a child pronunciation as well as spelling. To this end the words in the "Self-Pronouncing Speller" have been diacritically marked and syllabicated, so that it will not be found necessary to consult the dictionary for the pronunciation of any word contained in it. The latest edition of Webster's Dictionary has been followed. The markings are also Webster's, simplified so as to be readily understood by the child. The device of re-spelling phonetically has not been used except in a few cases, the desire being to impress the pupil, as nearly as may be, with the form of the word as he will meet it in ordinary print.

The book is divided into eight sections, each section adapted to the corresponding grade. It contains some eighty-seven hundred words, and, inasmuch as this number is not padded by the useless repetition of words combined with the various prefixes and suffixes, the speller will be found ample for all grammar school needs.

The simpler words in the first two sections will be found especially helpful in fixing an early understanding of the diacritical marks. It is urged, therefore, that these two sections be used for sight drill in ready pronunciation rather than for formal work in spelling. In each section the words are presented alphabetically. It seemed that any other arrangement, however fanciful, would detract from the value of the book as a speller. This device also enables the child readily to find any word, and thus drills him in the use of a dictionary.

The plan in preparing the "Self-Pronouncing Speller" has been to present a list of words which are or should be in the child's vocabulary, but on the spelling and pronunciation of which he should have special drill. It is not intended as a treatise on comparative philology, nor an introduction to the study of Latin and Greek, nor yet a grammar. It omits some material found in other books, much of which is useless and distracting with its endless and hopeless detail. An exception is the insertion of the more common rules of spelling, a rule usually following an exercise which has disclosed a practical illustration of it. In this respect alone does the speller encroach upon the language book. A very full list of homophones has been appended, as has also a useful table of prefixes and suffixes. The lists of abbreviations found in the original edition have been retained. All this supplementary material may be used at the discretion of the teacher.

The wise teacher will give as important a place to spelling as to any other study in the curriculum; the child should be kept at spelling until he is able to spell,—both orally and in writing. For the oral work a revival of the spelling bee cannot be too strongly urged. For the written work a substantial blank book is especially recommended, as no device will so spur on the child to painstaking care as a permanent record of his daily efforts.

The mark ⁺ indicates a slight modification of the ordinary long vowel, occurring in an unaccented syllable.

The circumflex \wedge below a letter indicates its obscure, almost elided, short sound.

VOWEL EQUIVALENTS

ạ = ǒ	as in	whạt	ô = ũ	as in	côme
ê = â	“	thêre	ô = ạ	“	fôrtune

THE CONSONANTS

The consonants b, d, f, h, j, k, l, m, n, p, r, s, t, v, w, x, z, unmarked, never vary in sound.

-ious (=shŭs) as in anxious
-le, preceded by a consonant, is pronounced 'l in combination with that conso-

HELPFUL HINTS

NOTE especially that where only one of two or more successive vowels is marked, that vowel only is to be sounded ; thus mēat is to be pronounced mēt, prāi'rīe as if it were prā'rī.

C is invariably hard (e) before a consonant or a, o, u ; soft (ç) before e, i, y : circus, conceit, cradle. G usually follows the same rule : g before a consonant or a, o, u ; g before e, i, y ; but observe ġet, ġive, ġig, hugged, and a few other words. C and g final are always hard ; in this book they frequently have been marked, so as to remind pupils of this rule. The value of c and g, whatever their position, is usually indicated by the appropriate mark.

Final e preceded by a consonant is always silent, except in a few words of foreign origin and in monosyllables.

All consonants printed in italic are silent : psālm.

In eh the h is always silent ; in numerous instances, however, the h is printed in italic to keep this fact before the learner.

Whenever the pronunciation cannot be clearly indicated with the marks employed, the whole word, or the peculiar syllable, has been repeated in parentheses : fore'head (fōr'ēd), bouquet' (bō kā'), eām'phor (fēr).

The key-line at the bottom of each page will be found especially valuable as an aid to pronunciation. A glance will inform the child of the value of the marked letters in his daily lesson. Observe that the vowels are arranged alphabetically.

HOMOPHONES

The following list of homophones consists of words whose use the pupil is quite likely to find confusing. They have not been diacritically marked, because most of them have already occurred in the body of the book and also because their grouping affords a key to their pronunciation. The definitions are necessarily short, but it is believed they will be found perfectly clear. It is suggested that lessons be regularly assigned here, a column at a time, and that pupils be required to use the homophones in sentences of their own construction. This work, of course, is adapted only to the higher grades.
